Padre homecoming queen, attendants scream for team

FIERCE FLAMES take a licking from Carmel Valley and Carmel volunteer firemen Friday and Saturday. Most furious kinds of fire, from gasoline in a simulated aircraft structure to a real head-on car crash, were controlled in a practice exercise for many area firemen at the Navy air field. That's Bob Updike, assistant chief of the Carmel Fire Dept. (left) with Don Weber, Carmel Valley next, and then Elio Chiappe from Carmel. Lee McGuckin of Carmel takes pictures in the background. Middle School downs Tularcitos, but loses to Fitch

Middle School 5th graders, assisted by two 6th graders, downed Tularcitos last week 58-0 and the Middle School 6th graders won 35-19. Two 6th graders got into the act with the Middle School 5th grade team, Dave Hunter and Bill Lemos scoring all the TDs. Middler 5th grade defensive standouts were Kim Cater and Tim Dills.

For Tularcitos, Larry Ocampo was outstanding. And Tom Ocampo with Tim Ferris combined to score the touchdowns for Tularcitos 6th graders, although they lost 35-19 to Middle School. Jeff Hall scored four and Jim Challis TDs for the winners. Doing well in defensive play were Neil Mimyomoto, John Criddle and Greg Cater.

Middle School 7th grade lost 19-6 to Fitch in a good game Saturday at Fremont High. Mike Feeney ran back the kickoff for the counter, and Mike Holbert, John O'Shea and Jim Keller were other standouts.

Tularcitos will meet Middle School Saturday at 9 at the Middle School and Coach Roland Schutt promises all his 6th graders will play with that team. York School will play Middle School 7th and 8th graders Friday afternoon and P.G. Saturday morning here.

CVYO Movies?

We have heard parents in Carmel Valley complain that there are not enough recreational facilities for their youngsters, small through teenage. Hearing this we wonder why there isn't more support of the movie program which the Carmel Valley Youth Organization sponsors at the Community Center. In these days of inflated costs, a color movie for 35¢ is a bargain in anyone's language. And to have such good films... and adult supervision (you can call it baby sitting for 17-1/2 cents an hour) is a real buy!

Last weekend, a bare handful of people, mostly grownups, attended the nighttime movie.

The kids in the CVYO are making a valiant effort to keep their heads above water, but when they have to pay for top films on an attendance record of five or six, they HAVE to go in the red.

Yet we have a feeling that if they close down the movies, which they may have to do... there are going to be long and loud screams... about nothing to do in Carmel Valley!

PERSPECTIVE

IN SHORT

Two designs created by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burgess of Carmel Valley Origins Shop for note stationery they produce for retail and wholesale have been accepted for inclusion in the California Design X show. This is a very big design exhibition held every three years to feature California design and crafts. The show will be held March 31 to May 12, 1968 at the Pasadena Art Museum and will later move to be a main feature at the California Exposition in Sacramento, June 28 to Sept. 17, 1968.

TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Outlook:

I wish we could personally "Thank" each person who has helped us by having this Bar-B-Q for Kathy, and for the many acknowledgements of your sympathy. We will be eternally grateful to the people of Carmel Valley who have helped us in our sorrow and need.

Thank you many times over for your concern and prayers for Kathy during her illness — for a little girl who was born — loved — died in Carmel Valley.

Gratefully,
Sal and Mary Ocampo

SCHOOL NOTES

The third and fourth grade students of Mrs. Alice Powell's class at Woods School were host to six Venezuelan educators last week. The Latin American visitors were guests of the Institute for Multilevel Learning International of Big Sur, and they came to Woods School to see a demonstration of the Word Games part of the SRA Reading Laboratory program which was authored by Dr. Don H. Parker, who is director of the Institute.

The youngsters greeted their guests in Spanish and then used the multilevel game to practice reading skills while the visitors walked along the aisles, asked questions and made comments.

The leader of the Venezuelan group, Dr. Miguel Pinto Salvatierra, brought greetings to the class, in English, from the children of Venezuela and expressed a hope that they could see Venezuela some day.

Dr. Pinto, assistant director of the planning dept. of Venezuela's Ministry of Education, was accompanied by Dr. Antonio Izquierdo, Miss Florencia Salazar, Miss Lesbia Berbin, Mrs. Juana de Montani, and Mrs. Ligia de Bianchi. These represented a university professor and psychologist, ministry offical, a school principal, a textbook writer and a representative of the National Book Bank.

Dr. Harris Taylor, superintendent of the Carmel School District and Edwin McCurry, principal of Woods School, were present during the demonstration as were Mrs. Don Parker and Dr. William H. Fryback of Carmel Valley, both members of the Institute's staff.

The Rhyming Philosopher

October makes me think of nuts
And apples rip'ning on the trees,
With pumpkins clustered 'round the butts
Of cornstalks rattling in the breeze.

The village shops predict that soon
All Halloween again breaks loose.
The gobbler sings a mournful tune
In sympathy with next month's goose.

Some early dawn we'll wake to find
The silvered touch of that first frost
Which tells of summer left behind
By autumn. Yet not all is lost--

There's something special in the glow
Around the fire on chilly nights
To draw us close. It's good to know
That winter has its own delights.

The ebb of life, the fading year
Have rich rewards and recompense.
And as the close of day draws near
Comes rest, sweet rest in providence.

A PROUD NAME... Planning Commission Chairman Dorothy von Meier presented proof that Carmel-by-the-Sea is a name to be zealously guarded. At the commission's study session last week she related that she and Commissioner Roberts attempted to attend a session on planning problems of cities with less than 30,000 population at the League of California Cities convention.

However, the tiny space allotted to this session was crammed beyond capacity. In consequence, she and Mrs. Roberts moved to the session on planning problems of cities of more than 60,000 population. This was in a ballroom and sparsely attended. The Carmel planning commissioners decided to remain even though Carmel's problem is to keep the city from ever becoming so abhorrently large.

Specifically under discussion was how planning commissions can work to obtain admirable city development. Cited as an excellent example of what can be accomplished in this respect was what Carmel has done. Both Carmel planning commissioners felt a glow of justifiable pride.

WHERE CAN THE HOUSE GO?... Building Inspector Fred Cunningham outlined a property owner's dilemma to the planning commission last week. P. G. Tersol has requested a variance to allow him to build on an irregularly shaped lot in the Eighty Acres section of Carmel. If legal setbacks are required for the construction, "it will be almost impossible to get a reasonable-sized dwelling on the property," Cunningham stated.

The matter was referred to the commission's land use committee for report today on what are the front and side lines of the 4,080 square feet site with a slope greater than one foot rise in seven feet and a topography presenting other unusual difficulties including being situated on an abandoned portion of Vizcaino Ave. No one spoke on the matter at last week's public hearing.

SAND DUNE LOTS... Another public hearing at which no one spoke was held on a proposed ordinance limiting development in the sand dunes west of San Antonio St. and north of Ocean Ave. This parcel is the former property of the late Elizabeth McClung White.

The ordinance states that "due to extraordinary terrain and scenic characteristics" no site in this location shall ever be smaller than as it existed on Jan. 1, 1967, and no further subdivision shall be permitted. In addition, no building site shall be granted for an area less than 6,000 square feet. The ordinance was referred to the land use committee for report today.

RASH OF DECALS... Planning commissioners have decided some action must be taken in respect to the proliferation of decals that are cluttering business district windows. Some stores have as many as six attached to display windows, Commissioner Roberts pointed out. The decals inform the public that certain methods of payment for purchases are acceptable. Latest addition to these decals are those of master charge bank cards.

Carmel's sign ordinance prohibits signs on windows and rigidly controls the total area of all business signs. However, Building Inspector Fred Cunningham indicated it is hard to determine which decals predated the ordinance, except for the master charge bank card displays, thus making it hard for him to enforce the law. He asked the commission to determine if the decals are to be allowed, also, if approved, what shall be the maximum size allowable and what location on a window they shall be permitted.

A suggested solution last week was that the information given by the decals could be equally well disseminated by small signs inside the shops, either in a window display or elsewhere.

"We have asked that decals be removed in the past," Mrs. Roberts declared. "They're against what we're working towards," she added.

NEW SIGNS... Six business district signs were approved by Carmel planners last week. They were for Golden Dragon; Golden West Pancakes; Richard T. Wilsdon; Circle, The Ring of Awareness; Treasure Island; and Mr. John's Lamp-Light Gallery.

Denied was a sign requested by Marlinde von Ruhs for her Sunset Center studio-gallery. At present, planners are working with Sunset Center Manager Cole Weston on a directory-type sign identifying all Sunset tenants. These identifications will be of uniform size but individual design.

Miss von Ruhs was asked to resubmit her sign in accordance with this directory. The design she submitted last week was acceptable in style but too large. The location of the sign immediately north of the auditorium entrance was considered undesirable.

AWNINGS ... Awnings were approved for the Wayfarer Inn and the Leslie C. Fenton building on the west side of Mission St. south of Ocean Ave., formerly Raffaelo's. Fenton was also given permission to install two amber glass carriage lamps

PARKING LOT... Held until today was approval of a parking lot for Cypress West Hotel requested by H.K. Poffenberger. The parking will be in the residence zone south of the hotel on the west side of Lincoln St.

Article by CV MPC teacher is published

"Articulation — High School, College and Employers," an article by Mrs. Rosetta Smith of Carmel Valley, a business instructor at Monterey Peninsula College, appears in the October issue of California Business Education Journal.

Mrs. Smith, who has been director of a project known as "CIBOT" (Curriculum Improvement of Business Occupational Training) for the past two summers, describes the problems and success of the project in the article.

Financed by the Vocational Education Act, CIBOT involved the interviewing of local employers and former students now employed to determine Peninsula job opportunities, necessary skills and knowledge, and needed changes in business curricula for both MPC and the four local high schools.

Working with Mrs. Smith were teachers from the Monterey, Seaside, Pacific Grove and Carmel High schools.

Firemen aid girl

Ragan Scherman, 2-1/2 year old daughter of Mrs. Lynda Scherman, received emergency first aid from Carmel Valley firemen before being transported to the office of a Valley physician.

Seattle visitors

Mrs. M.S. Porter of Seattle visited her sister, Mrs. Emma Shoemaker and niece Mrs. Ned Sinclair and family recently to help celebrate Mrs. Shoemaker's birthday.

Carmel Currents

Use of 'Carmel-by-the-Sea' name by hotel questioned

by MARJORY LLOYD

LEAGUE DELEGATION... Carmel was represented by 24 persons at last week's League of California Cities convention in San Francisco, a goodly number for a city of less than 5,000 population. Mayor Steve Grant headed the group from Carmel. He was accompanied by his wife as were, too, Councilmen Herbert Blanks, William Sefton, Eben Whittlesey and Gunnar Norberg. Police Chief Clyde Klaumann, Superintendent of Public Works William L. Askew Jr., City Clerk Hugh Bayless, City Attorney William B. Burleigh and Sunset Center Manager Cole Weston with their wives also were in the delegation. The planning commission was represented by Planning Director John Riling, Chairman Dorothy von Meier and Commissioners Dorothea Roberts and Barney Laiolo.

USING OUR NAME... Planning Commissioner Dorothea Roberts is a native Carmelite and as such cherishes the name and fame of Carmel-by-the-Sea. She also upholds planning commission, city council and citizens' efforts to conserve and create a beautiful city. This is why she was annoyed when she saw a highway billboard in San Benito County advertising Holiday Inn. The location of the new hostelry was given as Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Actually, the Holiday Inn site is far outside Carmel-by-the-Sea's one square mile area. Moreover, the size and nature of the development, also its architecture, convention facilities and "live" music, would not be allowed within the city limits.

Mrs. Roberts does not want anyone to be misled by that billboard into thinking that her native city's zoning laws are so lax that such development is permitted. Consequently, she wants "Carmel-by-the-Sea" to be removed from the Holiday Inn billboard.

"They're using our name," she protested at last week's planning commission study session. Other commissioners supported her stand.

Today action will be taken. The commission will ask the city council to authorize Attorney William B. Burleigh to request the Holiday Inn organization to remove the false location identification from its advertisement. (Turn to page 4)

By way of Flat Iron

Craft Studios owner came here from Mexico

An artist, completely surrounded with art and art supplies, is Fred Klepich, owner of Carmel Craft Studios.

The Craft Studios were fashioned originally after a Mexican Market with "stalls" around a central plaza. In the plaza there would probably be a fountain; in the Studio "plaza" there is a fireplace. Fred was one of the original designers of the complex on San Carlos.

When Fred came to Carmel to stay, he came here from Mexico, so the design is not just an accident. In 1950, he had been studying and working at the Instituto in San Miguel Allende.

Neither was it an accident that Fred came to Carmel from Mexico. He had been stationed at the Presidio during the war and vowed to come back, because he loved Carmel.

Believe it or not, Fred was born in Flat Iron, South Dakota, although he was raised in Montana. It takes a terrific sense of humor to live with Flat Iron, S.D. and Fred is the man that has it.

He has studied painting at the famed Art Institute in Chicago and at art school in Los Angeles. However, he has never taken a lesson in his favorite medium... watercolor. He has always kept that a very special private thing to which he now devotes all his time. He has worked in oils, lithography, murals, and other mediums but keeps coming back to watercolor, so now that is where he stays.

FRED KLEPICH

In the early days of Carmel Craft Studios they had weekly one-hour art shows on Fridays. There were judges and prizes and many began to be known through these, both to the public and to each other. Now these are held only four times a year. The next one is set for Dec. 15.

The Gallery and shop, crammed with everything an artist might need, is an extremely busy place, catering to those who buy art and those who produce it. It is only in his spare time that Fred has time to paint himself... This means before ten in the mornings and in the evenings and on Sundays.

A member of the Carmel Art Assoc., Fred mused, "I feel that everyone should do as much as he can in his own field. It is more important to concentrate. Mine happens to be art so I stay out of politics, for example.

"When I am hiking along the beach... I am a beach walker ...I have a sketch pad with me and am concentrating at the same time."

This philosophy also carries over even to the two bulletin boards which are hung in the Craft Center. Anything pertaining to art may be posted... but NO politics!

The Doctor says:

by Dr. James Short

'Tobacco: a major health problem'

In a publication entitled, "Research Reports on Tobacco and Health," published by the Tobacco Institute, Inc., with headquarters at 150 East 42nd Street, New York, one article would have you believe that lung cancer is a psychosomatic disease. Another article is entitled, "Carcinogens (that is, cancer-producing substances) Don't Cause Lung Cancer." Another points to the virus origin of cancer. Then another indicts your ancestors.

There is some element of truth in a few of these articles. It is very evident, however, that the tobacco interests are trying to take the "heat" off tobacco by directing attention to other known causes of cancer. Not all lung cancer is due to tobacco smoking, certainly. I have seen cancer of the lung in individuals who have never smoked. but when you take a large group of individuals with the same type of environment and you find a very great increase in the incidence of lung cancer in those who smoke, over those who do not, it is evident that smoking is an outstanding factor in producing lung cancer.

Multitudes of scientific studies have been carried out in various countries, and all have concluded that there is strong causal relationship between smoking and lung cancer. I wonder why the tobacco companies are so defensive in this matter? They have always taken a dim view of suggestions tending to incriminate tobacco as the cause of disease. Remember the old-time slogans? Their advertising used to run like this: "Chest-of-ills Don't Hurt Your Throat" ... "We are Tobacco Men, Not Medicine Men" ... "Not a Cough in a Carload," etc. Now those statements were literally correct. Cigarettes don't hurt your throat, the smoke does! Cigarettes don't cough, the smoker coughs!

The emphasis in advertising now seems to have changed completely. No longer is the attempt made to answer the various indictments, at least to the public. Now all is Glamor and Light ... Moonlight and Roses ... Youth and Vigor ... Romance and Happiness ... all to be obtained by the habitual use of a noxious weed!

One familiar TV commercial shows a handsome he-men on horseback lighting up a cigarette in "Marlboro Country." Someone has suggested that it would be more appropriate to designate Forest Lawn Cemetery in Glendale as Marlboro Country!

And is this mode of advertising paying off? It certainly is! The use of tobacco is increasing by leaps and bounds. The sales are prodigious. The profits are enormous. The gross sales of one of the larger companies recently amounted to well over a half billion dollars in one year, the largest gross sales in the company's history. Total sales of all companies ran over five billion dollars, and one hundred thirty million dollars a year is spent in TV advertising, according to one report.

So we can see from all of this that tobacco is really big business in the United States. It is also a major health problem.

The problem has become so serious that legislators are becoming alarmed. The World Conference on Smoking and Health has called for a ban on cigarette advertising and the prohibition of smoking in government facilities and public places in all countries.

The people need to be informed, and the coming generations protected. As a nation, we are lagging behind some of the European countries in taking protective action. England has posted warning signs in its railway stations. The British Broadcasting Co. is said to have stopped all advertising of cigarettes until after 9 o'clock in the evening, so that youngsters will not be able to view and hear them. Sweden is said to have stopped all cigarette advertising. The Dutch National Health Council has admitted the relationship of cigarettes to lung cancer.

New comedy, 'The Odd Couple,' New York hit, to open Friday, Nov. 3rd, at the Studio Theatre

Continuing the light-hearted spontaneous comedy of Neil Simon, The Studio Theatre-Restaurant will present another of his plays, "The Odd Couple," on Nov. 3.

The plot involves two "marriage drop-outs" and their attempts to get used to a bachelor's life, living together in a New York apartment.

One, Oscar, is really a disorderly slob, and the other, Felix, is absolutely meticulous as chef and housekeeper.

These traits happened to be the very ones which wrecked their respective marriages.

Two somewhat dumb, but willing, sisters from a neighboring apartment and the "odd couple's" poker-playing friends also become entangled in the whole affair to create, according to the conservative New York Times, "scarcely a moment that is not hilarious."

If Simon's other play, "Barefoot in the Park," which has been playing at the Studio is any criterion, this should also be most entertaining fare.

Don Osborn directs "The Odd Couple," with sets and lighting by Bob Evans, Jr.

Opening on Nov. 3, the play will run through mid-December on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights.

Art auction and party to benefit artists of burned Sculpture Center

Fun, food, beer, music and an art auction will mark the benefit being held on Cannery Row Sunday, Oct. 29, for the artists who lost their works and their materials in the fire which destroyed the Sculpture Center.

The festivities will be held in the parking lot across from the Warehouse from 12 to 4 p.m. Food and libations will be furnished by the Warehouse.

Artists who are interested in participating in the closed-bid auction are asked to bring their works to the Calliope Gallery, across from Kalissa's on Cannery Row. They will remain on display through the morning of the 29th. Bids will be taken up till midnight on Saturday, Oct. 28.

There will also be a drawing for commercial prizes which have been donated for the affair and a rock band will play for dancing during the afternoon.

Further information may be obtained at The Calliope or from Mrs. Steve Brown at 375-1986.

Eleanor Michaels, concert pianist, now teaching here

Eleanor Michaels, pianist and teacher, has recently settled in Carmel and is teaching at her residence studio on Mesa Dr. and Trevis Way. She is a member of The Music Teachers Assoc. of California and a native of Portland, Ore., where she established herself as a musician and performer.

Her professional career includes not only her teaching, but concert engagements, radio broadcasting, duo-piano and instrumental ensemble work, as well as serving as accompanist for soloists, choral groups, and opera workshop. She previously maintained studios in Portland, Honolulu, San Francisco, Reno and San Carlos.

Pearl Buck, famous author, to speak at MPC Saturday night

Pearl Buck, one of the most widely read American authors, will lecture at Monterey Peninsula College on Saturday evening, Oct. 28. The 8 p.m. lecture will be held in the National Guard Armory.

Although Miss Buck was born in West Virginia, she moved to China with her missionary parents when she was five months old. She learned to speak Chinese before she was able to converse in English during her childhood years in the city of Chinkiang.

Her first novel was "East Wind: West Wind," which was successful in its own right before the publication of "The Good Earth," ten months later.

"The Good Earth," perhaps Miss Buck's best-known work, was on the American best-seller list for 21 months and also won the Pulitzer prize for the author. This novel was subsequently translated into more than 30 languages.

One of Miss Buck's major interest in life has been the problems of children – orphaned, retarded, underprivileged and of mixed racial background. She has raised five adopted children in addition to her own.

Free tickets for the lecture are available at the MPC administration building or may be obtained by mail from the MPC community service office, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LISE TESCHER (center) and Bob Bray accept Jackie Bray's invitation to sample the sumptuous hors d'oeuvres served at the "Meet the Artist" preview held Thursday at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art gallery in Carmel. The champagne reception honored artists who were chosen to exhibit in the fourth annual Monterey County Painting Competition. Lise was chairman of the preview party.

Monterey Peninsula Art Museum plans 'An Afternoon of Jewels'

Models for the gala benefit will be Mmes. Pillsbury Pringle, Cartlandt C. Hill, Darius Keaton, Barbara Tripp, Blair McDonald, Robert McMahan, Basil A. Coleman, Monte Harrington and Alfred C. Castle, according to Mrs. Harry Lusignan. Jewels will be shown through the courtesy of Lindemann Jewelry Co., Union Square.

In addition to the luncheon and fashion show, there will be glamorous door prizes of custom designed jewels valued at $1,000. A social hour will precede the luncheon at 11:30, with food and fashions following at 12:30.

Tickets including luncheon and door prize are $5.50 with proceeds to benefit the Museum of Art. Reservations must be made by Nov. 1, by calling the Museum at 624-2918.

Lecture on economic picture set Thursday

"From Gloom to Boom" will be the subject of a special lecture to be presented at the Monterey office of Dean Witter & Co., 750 Del Monte Center, this Thursday evening at 7:30.

Dean Witter account executive Ronald N. Heisman, who is registered with the New York Stock Exchange, will conduct the free lecture based on an economic analysis by the brokerage firm's Economic Policy Committee. Heisman will discuss the forecast of an upcoming business boom mixed with inflationary pressures.

Reservations for the special lecture should be made by phoning 373-1861.

According to the way I heard it, a man went down to a bookstore to get a long-anticipated book that had just arrived and found people were actually standing in line for their copies. Then he got a bright idea . . . He walked out to the sidewalk and into a telephone booth in front of the store. He dialed the mail order section of the store and requested his book. When the clerk asked for the name and address, he said, "Don't bother sending it . . .just bring it to me out in front of the store!" Buying a book or whatever your shopping needs, I'm sure you'll find shopping by phone is time-saving and more convenient, and don't forget the handy Yellow Pages.

Cachagua COMSAT station is under construction

Construction has begun on the new earth station for satellite communications in Cachagua, with completion scheduled for late 1968. This newest COMSAT station will serve as a major West Coast link for the global system of space communications.

The installation of the 97-foot parabolic "dish" antenna will climax the year of road and land grading, landscaping and construction of an 18,000-square foot Control Building.

This station will simultaneously process signals sent to and received from commercial satellites stationed in orbits 22,300 miles over the Pacific.

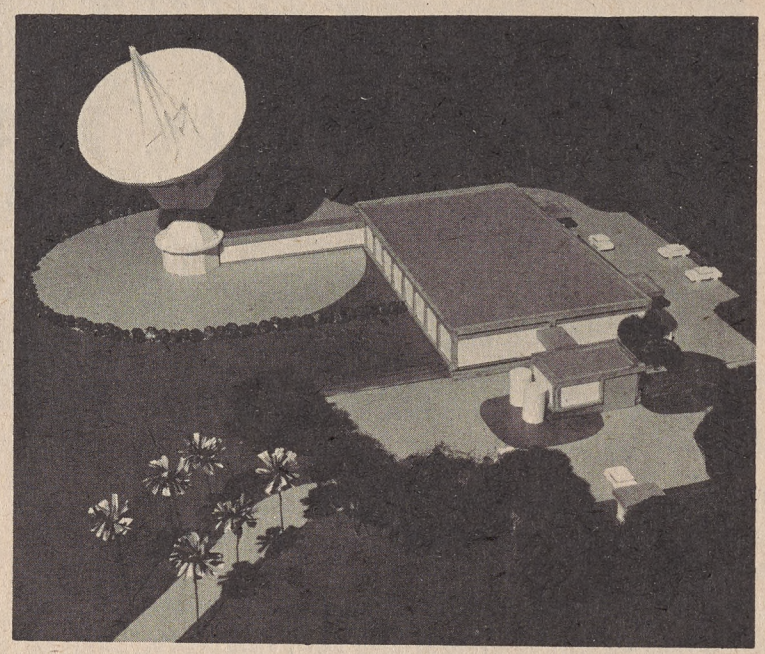
The new facility will transmit microwave signals to the satellite. The signals will then be amplified, changed in frequency and relayed to other stations.

The station, in return, will pick up the faint signals transmitted by the satellite and boost them in power billions of times to make them useable. (The signals will be sent at a power less than that of a common light bulb.)

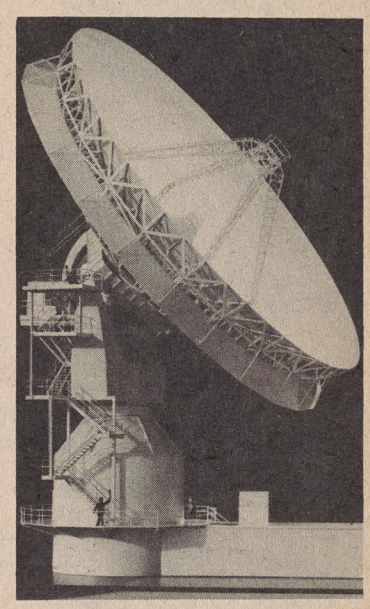
The station will be connected to ground contacts by conventional land communication lines.

The satellites are opening the way to many high speed communications. Weather maps have been transmitted 8 times faster than normal methods. Entire books or newspapers may be transmitted in minutes and in-flight airline communications could improve aviation traffic control.

At the present time satellites link North American and Europe with two-way voice channels or a color TV channel and two more powerful satellites link North America, the Far East and other Pacific points. Another is capable of linking Latin America and Africa as soon as earth stations are constructed in those regions. Forty-five such stations are anticipated in 1969.



THE CONTROL BUILDING at Jamesburg will be similar to the above architect's model. In the Carmel Valley earth station, however, the antenna will be located off the end of the building instead of at the side as pictured.



THE LARGE ANTENNA, shown in the scale model, will stand taller than a ten-story building. It will be operated remotely from the Central Control Building.

THE CONTROL BUILDING and antenna for the earth station in Cachagua Valley will be located near the left center of the photograph. Work has begun on the grading of the land and an engineer, Walter Robinson, is in residence at the site. (Photos from Communications Satellite Corp.)

A warm Valley welcome to Lt. and Mrs. Doug Terrel who have purchased the former Janic home in Hitchcock Canyon. Lt. Terrel who has just completed a year of duty in Vietnam has been assigned to Advanced Infantry Training at Fort Ord. Mrs. Terrel spent the year that her husband was overseas in Paris. A teacher, Mrs. Terrel had been impressed with the Montessori method of educating toddlers to read and write, so she took a course in its 'modern' concepts which actually began in Italy in 1920!

A thrilling moment for Rev. and Mrs. Burkett Cree of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula was the dedicatory organ recital Sunday by Prof. Herbert Nanney. The Crees with their sons, George and Tobias, while on a trip to Europe had an opportunity to view the magnificent instrument while it was under construction at the Walcker Organ Factory in Stuttgart, Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kutschera of the Carmel Valley Manor presented the organ to the new Valley church.

Results of the duplicate bridge tournament held Tuesday evening at the Community Center by members of the Valley Bridge Club awarded first place to Mrs. Arnold Bradley and Mrs. George Corrigan.

Mrs. Martha Vail and her partner, Mrs. Lois Ann Bethea were in second place while Mrs. Irene Baldwin and Mrs. Barbara Robbins were in third place.

Carmel Valley canines appealed to the judges last weekend at the San Joaquin Kennel Club show in Stockton. Tom Stevenson of El Robledo Ranch in Robles del Rio showed his English import, a miniature poodle named Aspen Amata Bene to take a blue ribbon in the non-sporting group.

A former Valleyite, Patricia Vincent Craige took a first place ribbon with her Norwegian Elkhound, Ch. Vin-Melca's Howdy Rowdy in the competition for sporting group.

On Sunday in the working group at the Oakland Kennel Club show, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Graham of Carmel Highlands, who are well known in the Valley, took a second place with their Old English Sheepdog, Ch. Peter Pan's Wizard of Oz.

Have you noticed a vast hole in your child's new school wardrobe? The Phantom Oak Moth who went clear to the bottom of the Lost and Found Barrel recently in the office of Tularcitos School, reports a far larger selection of the latter than the former (found than lost!). There is already an impressive collection of handsome new coats, sweaters, and one-of-a-kind unbelievables! Take the tour, it's an education!

A new inhabitant (the souvenir of a vacation on the Campbell River in British Columbia) completely dominates the Merrill Way home of his adopted family, Beth and Clyde Hitchcock.

Valley old-timers who remember "Brownie," their pet of another era, are amazed at the way "Rusty," the new resident, has been able to establish a beach head.

Brownie was more than just a dawg. He was friend, family, companion, desk clerk and a Village character. He was the official greeter at the Adobe Oaks Motel, picked up the mail at the post office, aspirin at the pharmacy and a roast at the market. The entire community was shocked at the senseless crime that destroyed his life.

Welcome, "Rusty"; those are mighty large paw prints for a pint-sized Pomeranian to fill.

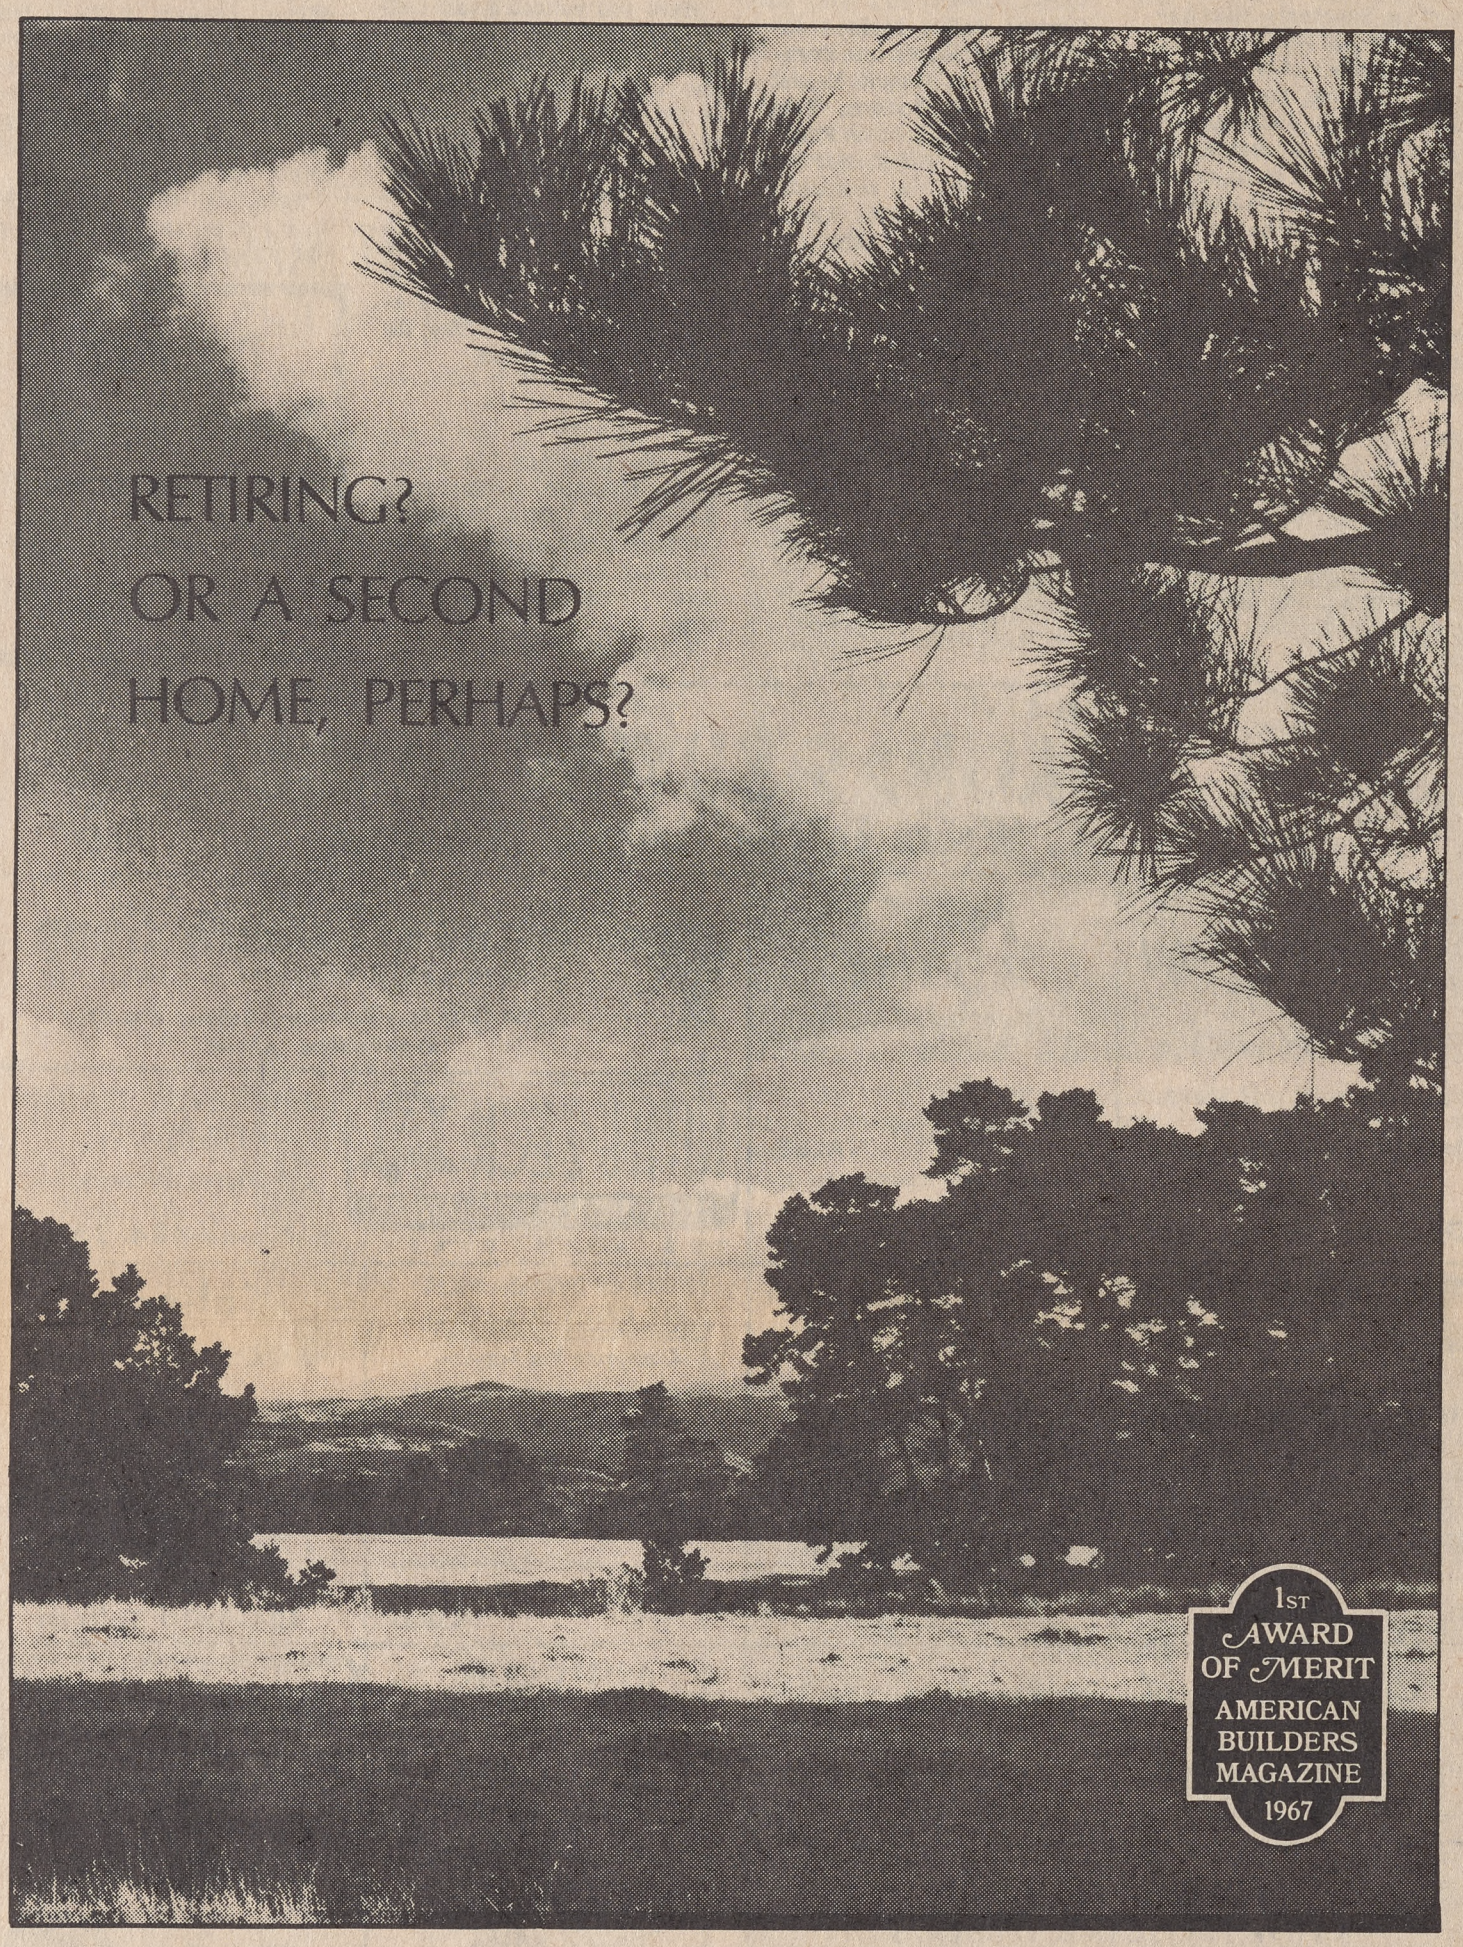
Special Halloween movie

Don't forget the special creepy, crawly, scary but funny pre-Halloween film at the Community Center on Saturday, Oct. 28 (not Oct. 26 as reported in last week's Outlook). "Ghosts on the Loose," starring the Bowery Boys and Bela Lugosi and "Oliver the Eighth" with Laurel and Hardy, will be shown at 1 and 3 p.m. Admission is 35¢.



A great success story high above Carmel Valley?

On this meadow, 400 feet above the Carmel Valley is Del Mesa Carmel, one of California's greatest adult community success stories. Things like Del Mesa Carmel don't happen overnight. More than three years of planning, the investment of millions of dollars and a great crew of believers, all along the line, made Del Mesa Carmel possible.

A few months ago we held a modest "grand opening". This followed one advertisement in the local press, some excellent publicity (much of it gratis), and the printing of two brochures—one in color.

Of course, in the meantime, as more and more building was done, and more and more people visited this matchless meadow in the sky, (and bought), word got around that Del Mesa Carmel is "just as good as they say it is!" Today we have representatives on duty in our Four Furnished Models from nine in the morning. More than seventy residences have been sold. But there's still plenty of choice—and even a decorator to help you with color combinations in painting, carpeting and draperies. So why don't you come down and see the many fresh, imaginative "reasons-why" Del Mesa Carmel is such a pleasant, exciting, beautiful success! And such a pleasant, exciting, beautiful place to live!

If you'd like one of our new color brochures before you visit, write Don McLean: Box 3688 O, Carmel, California 93921 or telephone (408) 624-2732 (Carmel, California)

For your personal inspection!

Endorse CV dam

Sewer study curbed: not enough money

The Federal Grant 701, requested by the County Planning Commission for planning studies for the master plan for sewage disposal, storm water draining, flood control and water resources has been refused for this quarter because of insufficient Federal funds, according to a letter presented yesterday at the Board of Supervisors' meeting.

The Planning Dept. will continue to request the grant for study of the Carmel Valley and Carmel Highlands area, according to Mel Bateman, with the hope that there will be Federal funds available after the first of the year.

In other business relating to the Valley, a letter was presented from W.B. Dickens, Jr., president of the Salinas Ike Walton Club, representing its 300-plus members. Mr. Dickens requested a study of the possibility of opening the area between the gate and Los Padres dam for access by car.

At present the parking lot is 3/4 mile from the dam and a chainlink fence and gate obstruct all but foot and horse traffic. The letter pointed out the flat area involved as an excellent picnic spot and noted that the gate restricted older people and children from enjoyment of the facilities because of the long walk involved.

A second matter was the endorsement of a multi-use dam on the Carmel River with the Klondike site favored. Dickens urged whatever steps necessary to speed an engineering study, which he feels the Army Engineers report shows to be necessary for flood control, in addition to the apparent recreation aspects and preservation of fish life during summer months by waters released into Carmel River.

The Board's recommended action was to refer the letter to the Parks Dept. and Flood Control Engineer.

CV artist John Keith, 42, dies

John E. (Jack) Keith, Carmel Valley artist and cartoonist, died Thursday morning at his Hitchcock Canyon home. He was 42 years old. While he had been ill for a short time, death was unexpected.

Jack had lived in the Valley for the past 13 years and just recently became curator of the newly formed Army art museum at the Presidio.

Jack is survived by his widow, Elizabeth, and a small daughter, Elizabeth Lucille. His father, William Keith, is a resident of San Diego. Two brothers are in the Armed Forces and a sister resides in Gurneyville.

Jay Criddle, Carmel Middle School counselor, makes vocational training guidance study

Jay Criddle, counselor from Carmel Middle School, was a member of a pilot program of in-service training to supply counselors with better information for vocational guidance.

Criddle did his research work in Salinas, spending one week at PG&E, one at Smuckers, and the last week at Spreckles sugar plant.

During this training period the counselors were given free run of the plants and were able to consult with both management and a number of young people who have been recently employed.

They found that contrary to popular opinion, many of the industries are looking for high school graduates, and there is an opportunity for young people to get ahead without a college education, although some junior college training is advantageous, according to Criddle.

There is also a possibility of additional schooling in the form of formal classes and on-the-job training in the industries.

One observation from some of the supervisors indicated that they were more interested in young people who were reliable than those with top grades.

As the wind-up to the summer training, the counselors met in Santa Cruz last week with the Central Coast Industry Education Council.

CV Community Center board meets

The board of directors of the Carmel Valley Community Center will meet tomorrow night at 8 p.m.

Reports will be given from various representatives as to the progress of the fund raising drive.

In addition a report of a recent trip by attorney Mark Starr, president Doyt Early and treasurer George Clifford to Sacramento will be given to the board. Purpose of the trip was to attempt to improve the Community Center's property tax position as a non-profit organization.

The meeting is open to any members

Your Place in the Country

About 10 miles into the sunshine, we'll turn up the private driveway. Canterbury Bells, looking over a low brick wall, greet you. Green lawn sets off the long ranch house — turquoise vertical siding and used brick, trimmed in white, with a triple thick shake roof. (Although you may not notice the house until you finish "oh-ing" and "ah-ing" over the oak trees surrounding it!)

WHICH WAY SHALL WE ENTER? By the proper front door, into a spacious entry with bookcases. Turn left to the living room with rough-cut paneling, white wiped, and the raised hearth fireplace. Spacious thick-carpeted dining room beyond, big enough to take 3 large buffet size pieces and a large table. Or turn right from the entry to the 3 bedroom, 2 bath wing.

OR SHALL WE GO IN BY THE "FAMILY ENTRANCE", through the morning room, that delightful breakfast room with the big oak tree right outside, so handy for feeding the birds while the coffee perks. Kitchen, by the way, has beautifully finished pine cabinets, ceramic tile counters, super-size stainless cooking equipment — and 31 cabinets and 9 drawers! Big service porch, too.

OR WE COULD HAVE ENTERED THROUGH THE FAMILY ROOM, the other side of the big oak, about 20 ft. square parquet-floored room, wonderful old-brick fireplace, paneled walls, hobby closets, and powder room (easily expanded to full bath.)

ALSO: Separate double garage with big workshop. And always, the peaceful green view of Garzas Canyon and the Santa Lucia mountains as well as the beauty and natural charms of the property itself — which, by the way, consists of two legal building sites if you care to sell one. Afraid this is going to be awfully expensive? Reach for your phone to make your appointment now, for it's Only $64,500

Action-minded airmen

Reservists fly old sky freighter on Orient run

(This is another of the reports by Publisher Bill Norton who was among several newsmen aboard a Globemaster cargo plane of the 349th Wing of the Air Force Reserves on a flight to and from Japan from Hamilton Air Force Base above San Francisco.)

Notes scribbled at 8,000 feet over the Pacific:

"Old Shaky's" her nickname and you'd think that, after 16 years of plowing the skies all over the world, this big, fat, old C-124 Globemaster would be a bit beat and tired. But this four-motor, propeller-driven flying barn is the pride of these Air Force Reservists, and their appreciation of their elderly airplane is contagious.

Old pros really, backed by years in the regular Air Force, they are action-minded airmen — they want to fly and to be useful in this man's Air Force.

So this crew of a dozen skillful Reservists is performing; they're working this old "bird" hard, delivering urgently-needed cargo all around the world.

MAJOR ED BLACK
Chief pilot and plane captain

Piled down the middle of the spacious cabin are eight thin, 30-foot long metal cases, marked "Helicopter blades... From Drshoi and Rokof Taego, Korea, to AFO 2060, Robins AFB, Ga., WT 400." Seven nylon straps plus a couple sets of chains secure them to hooks in the floor. There're also three wooden packing cases marked "magnetic equipment." (On one leg of our island-hopping flight we had an aluminum coffin bound for Okinawa.)

The big cabin can quickly be converted into two decks by folding down a metal floor that's hinged halfway up the cabin wall. Way at the rear of the cabin three of the crew are sprawled asleep on the three-tier bunk. An auxiliary napping setup of six narrow, canvas stretchers has been rigged in triple tiers.

The roar of the four big engines begins to take on a pulsing rhythm pounding on the brain. This airplane isn't pressurized, so it grinds along at 8,000 to 9,000 feet.

13 HOURS TO HAWAII

At the moment a nearly full moon outside the round portholes lights up the tops of the white, fluffy clouds over which the big plane is skimming. There are big, dark gaps of nothing — the Pacific way down there.

After the scenic run of three and a half hours up the coast to McChord Air Base, Tacoma, we took "12 and 3": 12 hours for crew rest and three hours, after the alert, of standing around while pilots file flight plans and the crew readies the takeoff.

Then a long, long haul of 13 hours to Hickham Field, Honolulu. A little sightseeing, brief sleep in the BOQ and away for the next grind to Wake Island, a coral dot in the Pacific.

Slumped on your tail bone on the canvas benches along the sides doesn't exactly whet your appetite, but there're box lunches or C ration chow anyway. Included are cans of cold chicken and noodles, diced pears and tasty orange-nut bread. Envelopes of powdered tea, coffe, for which no use because no hot water. Chewing gum.

Conversation on the long, monotonous, wearying hops is reduced by the noise to occasional shouting in each other's ear. Sleeping and reading. A high-brow library of some dozen paperbacks, such as Oscar Wilde's novel, "Dorian Gray," and "Great Religions of the World," is well used.

But if the barn-cabin is laden with lethargy, they're wide awake and busy top-side. Up the long ladder at the front to the pilots' cabin. Cozy and crowded, is on three levels.

Although a mechanical automatic pilot takes the physical labor out of piloting on the long hops, the pilot and co-pilot in their glass-surrounded cabin in the nose are constantly watching, checking and correcting.

BUILT IN SEXTANT

Just behind, down a step, the navigator seems the hardest working of all. Hunched over his chart, he figures with slide rule and works with ruler and protractor. Occasionally, he gives word to the pilot to keep heading steady for a few minutes, while he stands up and sights a star through the sextant, which is built into the roof. He radio-checks position.

The engineer sits on the other side of the middle level of the cabin, studying his 86 gauges. Now and then he climbs down to the cabin below and peers out a porthole at the engines and their tongues of red-blue fire shooting out the exhausts. Once he opened a trap door and disappeared through the cabin floor into a lower well where he opened little doors into the hollow wings where, in an emergency, he could slither out to the roaring engines.
